Section: Planning your career

Careers with an Arts or Humanities Degree is a concise and up-to-date look at the huge range of career opportunities that are open to graduates with an arts or humanities degree. This book aims to dispel the myth that such degrees have limited vocational value. Instead it highlights the value of arts/humanities studies, both in terms of intellectual satisfaction and developing skills valued by employers. This book explores:

- Careers related to particular degree subjects
- Graduate careers outside your degree subject
- Trends in graduate employment
- Adding value to your degree

This series of publications is designed to help students of all ages make the right choice about their careers and education.
