Examples of Relevant Research Publications:

Examples of research dissemination

Cotterill, S., McCarthy, P. J., Turner, M., & Barker, J. B. (2010). Reflections on working in professional and semi-professional sport academies: Case studies in football and cricket. Symposium delivered at the British Psychological Society's Division of Sport and Exercise Psychology conference. London, UK.

Invited Presentations:

Penn State University, USA; Key Note Lecture. Hypnosis as an alternative technique for enhancing exercise related behaviour. October 2010.

Aberystwyth University, UK; Sport and Exercise Science Key Note Lecture. Using hypnosis to enhance exercisers’ self-efficacy. October 2010.

Loughborough University, UK; Sport and Exercise Psychology Group Research Seminar: Using hypnosis to enhance sport performers self-efficacy. May 2010.

Workshops:

Barker, J. B. (2012). Using hypnosis in sport and exercise psychology. Workshop delivered as part of MSc in sport and exercise psychology at Loughborough University.

Barker, J. B. (2011). Using hypnosis in sport and exercise psychology. Workshop delivered as part of MSc in sport and exercise psychology at Loughborough University.

Media Outputs:

I have appeared in the national and international press (e.g., Daily Telegraph, Sunday Telegraph, The Times, Daily Mirror, BBC news website).

Examples of Relevant Contract Research:

Sport psychology support to:

Staffordshire County Cricket Club 2007-present (£21,000)

British Equestrian Federation 2009-2011 (£2,000)

Nottingham Forest Football Club 2009-2011 (£4,000)
Other activities:

Recently I have been guest editor for a special issue dedicated to the use of single-case research methods. The special issue is due to be published in 2013 in the Journal of Applied Sport Psychology (JASP). I review manuscripts for peer reviewed journals (e.g., Journal of Sports Sciences, Journal of Sports Science & Medicine, Sport and Exercise Psychology Review, Psychology of Sport and Exercise, European Journal of Sport Science, The Sport Psychologist) and research funding applications (e.g., The Social Sciences & Humanities Research Council of Canada). Finally, I am an external examiner for sport science related degrees at University of Bolton and Manchester Metropolitan University (MMU), a member of the BPS training committee, and a BASES SE assessor.